I want to extend my heartfelt thanks to all stakeholders who have contributed to the success of our Programme. I also invite religious institutions, governments, donors, and fellow organizations to join hands in addressing gender-based injustices and improving the lives of vulnerable children and women.

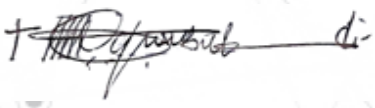

Despite the legal instruments in place, more must be done to protect the rights of all individuals. By aligning with national and international frameworks, we can eliminate harmful practices across Uganda. Support for organizations like ICCD is pivotal in empowering groups such as women, children, orphans, and refugees.

Let's embark on this journey of transformation together. May God bless our efforts.

Speaking specifically about the vulnerability of youths and young mothers to HIV and teenage pregnancies:

We must recognize the heightened vulnerability of our youths and young mothers to HIV and teenage pregnancies. By focusing our resources and support, we can offer them protection, education, and healthcare. This not only changes individual lives but also uplifts our entire community.

As we move forward, let's prioritize their well-being. In doing so, we honor our mission and invite God's blessings on our path.

COMMUNICATION FROM EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR INTERNATIONAL CHRISTIAN CONCERN FOR DEVELOPMENT (ICCD)

Mr. Stephen A. Obonyo
Executive Director
INTERNATIONAL CHRISTIAN CONCERN FOR DEVELOPMENT (ICCD)

Greetings in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ,

We, representing the ICCD, extend our warm regards. As we address the pressing concerns that plague our society, we emphasize the critical importance of focusing on our youth, their vulnerability to HIV transmission, and the alarming rise of teenage pregnancies. Moreover, we must not overlook the challenges faced by women, who are equally affected by these issues.

Amidst the collaborative efforts of the Ugandan government and various international organizations to safeguard refugees and the marginalized, particularly women and children, it is imperative that we intensify our endeavors. Merely establishing instruments and strategies is not enough; their full implementation is essential. Our collective commitment must ensure that these measures are not just on paper, but actively realized.

This brings us to a pivotal juncture where we implore your support and partnership. ICCD seeks to align with like-minded allies, particularly within host communities, to drive our set objectives forward. Our determination is unwavering, and with the foundation of dedication and leadership already established, we are poised to accelerate our progress. Our mission includes shielding refugees and other vulnerable individuals from all forms of suffering, particularly within the host communities they find themselves in.

In anticipation of a fruitful collaboration, we eagerly anticipate the prospect of working alongside you. Together, we can bring about meaningful change and contribute to the betterment of these communities.

Thank you for considering our proposition.

BACKGROUND

Introduction:

With humility and purpose, we introduce the International Christian Concern for Development (ICCD), a Faith-Based Humanitarian and Development Non-Government Organization, officially registered under Reg.No. IND R4028403NB. Our mission is resolute: to uplift vulnerable and underserved young individuals, women, and children.

ICCD's relentless focus lies on those who often go unnoticed — marginalized mothers, adolescents, children, and their families existing within the confines of refugee settlements, IDP camps, post-conflict regions, and rural communities across Uganda. Our dedication is unwavering, as we strive to cater to their health, educational, social welfare, and livelihood needs, amplifying their life skills development.

At ICCD, our collaborations with development partners and stakeholders hold immense significance. Together, we confront and mitigate the widespread impact of HIV & AIDS, advocating fervently for gender equity, peace, and holistic development. Our educational initiatives and WASH programs stand as pillars of progress, driving positive change in the lives of those often forgotten.

Within the context of the refugee response, it's evident that women and adolescents bear the brunt of adversity, while simultaneously acting as the primary caregivers and first responders within host communities. In recognition of this, ICCD stands unwavering in its commitment to provide targeted livelihood and protection support. We direct our efforts towards women, adolescent girls, and youths aged between ten (10) and twenty-six (26) years. We firmly believe that this approach directly influences the well-being and prospects of recovery not only for these individuals but for their families and communities as well.

The foundation of ICCD's approach is deeply rooted in ensuring that the rights and needs of women and girl refugees, along with the host communities, take center stage. A gender-responsive response is not just a priority for us; it is the very essence of our work. Through a lens of equality, safety, participation, leadership, and economic empowerment, we pave the way for impactful outcomes in both humanitarian and developmental realms.

With unwavering determination, we forge ahead, inviting you to join us on this transformative journey. Let us unite our efforts to create a more equitable and prosperous world for all.

Thematic Areas of Intervention

Livelihood and Skills Empowerment:

Our primary goal is to instill hope and empowerment among women, youth, and children impacted by the refugee situation. Recognizing that refugees, especially women, face initial challenges due to a lack of skills to navigate their new lives, we've identified skill training as the vital first step. Enabling them to secure jobs offers a pivotal solution to their difficulties. Our approach includes offering Training of Trainers (TOTs), facilitating connections to vocational training centers, and supporting the establishment and sustainability of Village Savings and Loan Associations (VSLA).

Education and Support:

ICCD is committed to assisting vulnerable refugees originating from countries such as the Democratic Republic of Congo, Rwanda, Burundi, South Sudan, Eritrea, Ethiopia, and beyond. These individuals often find themselves in situations of prostitution, sexual violence, rape, torture survival, HIV/AIDS positive status, forced labor, human trafficking, as well as among widows, orphans, and impoverished families within host communities. This demographic is growing in number within Kampala's refugee communities. Addressing this gap, we're launching targeted programs that provide them with essential skills and support they need.

Psycho-Social Well-being:

We understand the critical importance of addressing the psycho-social well-being of refugee women, particularly those who have endured torture, rape, and other forms of physical and sexual abuse. Drawing on our extensive operational experience in Yumbe, where we've effectively treated mental health issues, we're extending our services to collaborate with UNHCR. Our proven and cost-effective group talk therapy model, built on Group Interpersonal Psychotherapy, will serve as the foundation for treating mental health concerns among 18,000 adult refugees. Operating directly within refugee communities, we're dedicated to making a positive impact on their lives.

Social reintegration and resettlement:

ICCDpromotessocialreintegrationandsettlementbyusingaparticipatoryprocesstoprovidesupporttotraditionalandnon-traditionalapproachestopeacebuildingandconflictmanagement.ICCDapproaches this activity area using both Traditional and Non-traditional methods.

How ICCD seek to support Refugees children through sponsorship.

ICCD Provides scholarship funding through partnership with other NGOs. Scholarships are advertised by the issuing NGOs. Refuges who apply for scholarship must have a refugee status. Interviews for scholarships are conducted by a scholarship committee. ICCD is not involved in management of scholarships alone, works together under the supervision of Office of the Prime Minister and UNHCR.

Water, Hygiene & Sanitation

Water and Sanitation activities reduce the transmission of diseases and exposure to disease bearing vectors through the promotion of good hygiene practices, the provision of safe drinking water, and the reduction of environmental health risks. Water systems, hand pumps, latrines, vector control, solid waste disposal, and drainage are all components of our emphasis in the implementation of the sanitation and hygiene intervention.

Where we work

We are currently working in Refugee camps of West Nile and Northern Regions and to Bukedi region in Eastern part of Uganda.

Target Groups are women, adolescent girls / boys and children.

The rights and needs of women, girl, boys and children in refugees settlement and host communities must be at the heart of the refugee response in Uganda. A gender-responsive response prioritizing equality, safety, participation, leadership and economic wellbeing of the above mentioned community result in effective humanitarian and development outcomes.

Working Experience with Refugees.

In a collaborative effort between ICCD and RHU, a comprehensive verification initiative was carried out from March to October 2018. The primary objective was to authenticate the identities of all refugees and asylum seekers, confirming their status within Uganda. Out of the 1,444,856 individuals initially registered by the Government as refugees and asylum-seekers, the verification process covered 1,092,213 individuals, marking a completion of 16% of the targeted goal.

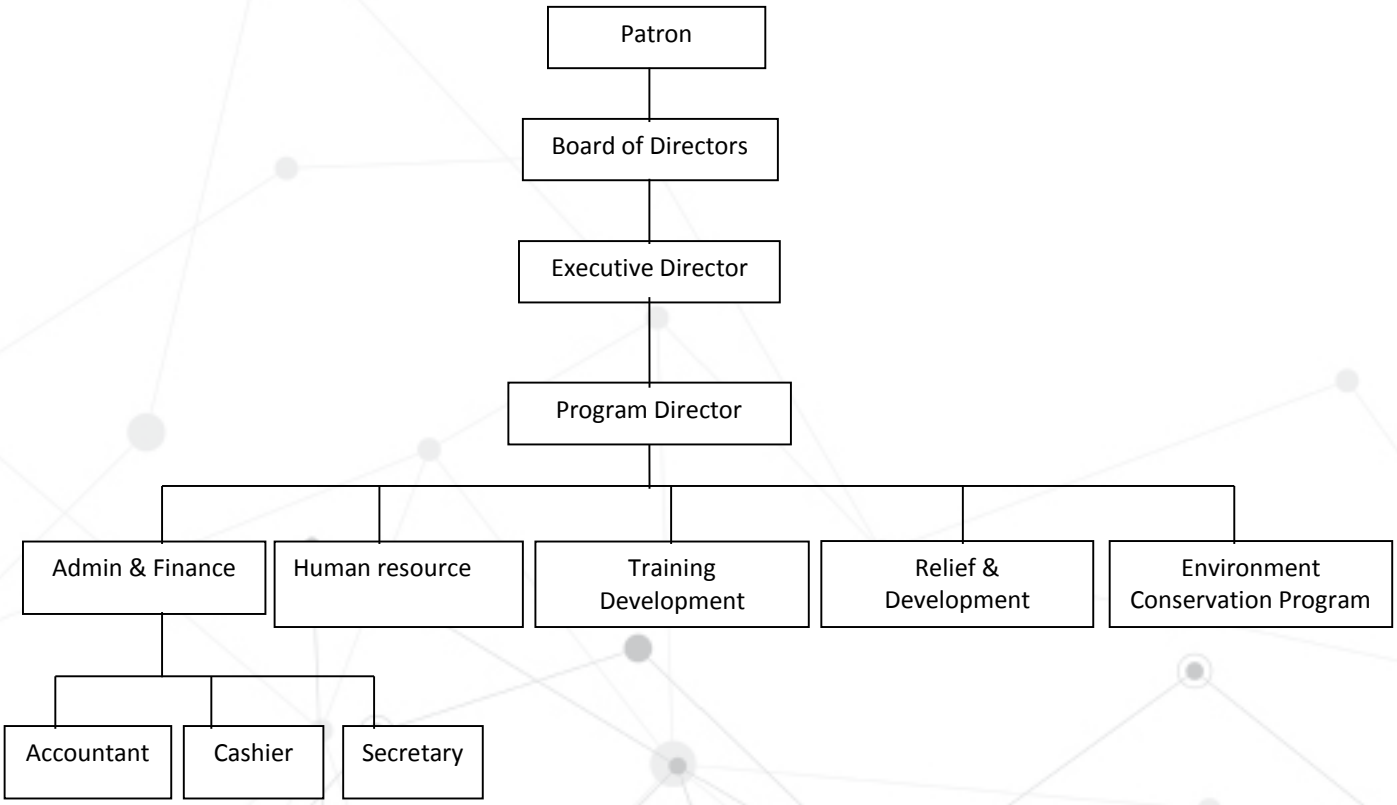

Notably, during this verification endeavor, 62,139 new arrivals were registered. Consequently, the total active registered population in Uganda as of the end of October 2018 rose to 1,154,352 individuals. The variance from the initial verification target stands at 352,643 individuals. Of these, 207,608 individuals were deemed inactive and closed for various reasons:

a) 192,707 reportedly returned to their countries or their whereabouts became unknown.
b) 9,481 were identified as recyclers.
c) 9,931 were reported as deceased.
d) 1,489 were closed due to their Ugandan nationality.

The overall reduction in population amounts to 245 individuals, with 17% attributed to the aforementioned causes. This indicates that 7% did not participate in the verification process.

Adapting this information to align with the efforts of youths and teenage girls in the fight against HIV, we can emphasize the collaborative spirit and data-driven approach in addressing crucial challenges. Through partnership and careful analysis, we can draw parallels in combating HIV's impact, recognizing that data-driven initiatives and collective engagement hold the potential to create a substantial positive impact.

The Organizational Structure Chart

As shown in the organization chart, the management structure of the International Christian Concern for Development (ICCD).

Our Approach

Our programs throughout Uganda and neighboring country are based on an innovative, holistic approach which empowers refugees, war affected people, internally displaced people mainly women and children leaving in rural and semi urban villages to become the agents of their own development and make sustainable progress in overcoming hunger and poverty.

The three pillars of our approach:

While adapted to meet local challenges and opportunities wherever we work, all programs have at their foundation three essential pillars:

1. Start by empowering women as key change agents
2. Mobilizing entire communities into self- reliant action
3. Fostering effective partnerships to engage local government actions.

They initiate projects such as campaigns against early marriage, dowry and violence against women; education programs for safe drinking water, nutrition and sanitation for rural communities; and income-generating activities.

One of our first activities is a Vision, Commitment and Action Workshop, which serves as the foundation of our work, inspiring individuals to move from “I can’t” to “I can” to “We can”. Through participation in our trainings, people set a vision for their communities, and then lay out the actions they will take to achieve that vision. Read more about this workshop.

THE WAY FORWARD

It's clear that ICCD (International Community for Child Development) is committed to addressing the needs of refugees from various African countries who are currently in Uganda. Your organization aims to work with several stakeholders, including the Government of Uganda, UNHCR, embassies, the European Union, churches, and international NGOs, to provide support for these refugees.

Challenges:

Identifying challenges is an essential step in planning any initiative. The challenges you've outlined, such as the lack of committed international partners or donors and insufficient transport facilities for field visits, reflect the need for collaboration, funding, and logistical support.

Future Plans:

Our future plans demonstrate ambition and a commitment to expanding the reach and impact of ICCD's programs. Extending programs to other districts in Uganda and neighboring African countries will help address the broader refugee crisis in the West Nile and Eastern regions. Furthermore, linking up with other faith groups indicates a desire for interfaith collaboration, which can amplify the effectiveness of your efforts.

Youth Empowerment:

Engaging and empowering young refugees can have a positive impact on their development and self-reliance. Programs that provide education, vocational training, life skills, and mentorship can help prepare them for a more promising future.

Teenage Pregnancies:

Disruption of normal living conditions and limited access to resources can increase the vulnerability of young girls to teenage pregnancies. Comprehensive sexual and reproductive health education, access to contraceptives, and support for young mothers are essential to mitigate this issue.

HIV/AIDS: Refugees often face challenges in accessing healthcare services, including those related to HIV/AIDS prevention, treatment, and support. Collaborating with NGOs that specialize in health services can help provide essential care, awareness campaigns, and access to antiretroviral treatment.

Mental Health: The experiences of displacement and trauma can have profound impacts on mental health. Integrating mental health support and psychosocial services into your programs is important for the overall well-being of refugees, especially the youth.

Incorporating these issues into the initiatives will contribute to a more holistic and impactful approach to supporting refugees from the Western and Eastern regions. It's essential to work closely with relevant organizations, local communities, and refugees themselves to develop programs that truly address their unique needs and challenges.

ACHIEVEMENTS

Create awareness on HIV/AIDS and provision of HIV/AIDS counselling and testing services.

To create awareness on HIV/AIDS and provision of HIV/AIDS counselling and testing services, ICCD and Bukedi Diocese took lead in community mobilisation for the integrated Sexual Reproductive Health Rights Services (SRHS) offered by Reproductive Health Uganda (RHU)- Tororo.

The service delivery team comprised of Laboratory Technicians, Data clerks, VHTs and Service Provider from RHU and Public Health facilities. Five (5) outreaches were conducted and the total number of people mobilised was 664 between 10-70 years of age. The activities during the out reaches included: Health education talks with the intention of sensitising and guiding clients to make informed decisions before taking up services. The health education sessions were also tailored to SRHR services with more emphasis on HIV/AIDS, STI management, condom provision and family planning. The youth were also sensitized on Gender Based issues since its one of the issues that is affecting a majority of them.

The Integrated model of service delivery was preferred during the outreaches because the assessment indicated service uptake was quite different for every client with different service These services therefore included: HIV/AIDS counselling and testing, family planning consultation and provision of all the FP methods, cervical and breast cancer screening, STI Management and occasionally laboratory testing e.g. HCG, screening and treatment of minor illnesses and referrals.

The total number of people mobilized is illustrated in the table below

No	Age	Number
	10-20	334
	21-30	203
	31-40	70
	41-50	53
	51-60	35
	61-70	21
	TOTAL	716

After the assessment for vulnerability and eligibility, all the mobilised clients were tested for HIV. AIDS (100%), 2 of the clients tested positive and were all referred for ART.

To increase and improve access to uptake of Family Planning services, i.e. permanent FP methods and LARC.

In most of the out reaches, the Health workers and VHTs supported and sensitised the clients on the importance of using family planning methods. The available types included: implant, IUD, sayona press, male condoms and pills.

The total number of clients who received family planning service were 63 aged between 20-40 years.

Youth during the brick laying activity in Mulanda church of Uganda as part of the economic strengthening activity

Empower the youth on economic activities

Deliver Combined Socio-Economic approaches (Financial Literacy and Vocational Training)

Combined Socio-Economic approaches was the main focus during the month alongside Financial Literacy training and these two have been done concurrently to enable the youth equip themselves with income generating skills and Financial knowledge to support them in planning for the future with their little savings.

The total number that has been reached with vocational skills is 478 equipped with Financial Literacy knowledge.

The skills that have been rolled out include: brick laying.

Challenges

- Limited vocational skills materials
- High expectations from the community.
- Limited service package to address the clients' needs.
- Lack of branded service delivery tents.

Recommendations

- Increase on the number of vocational skills options for the youth and the materials
- Increase on the service package
- Having focused community mobilization
- Procure branded service delivery tents to increase on visibility.

Lesson learnt

- Service integration is key in community mobilization
- Vocational skills attract the youth for community activities engagement.
